“ I just found out about Ron's passing just yesterday. Its hit me pretty hard honestly. We've been friends for just a little over a decade. He was funny, caring and kind. He had one of the best sense of humors I've grown to know and love. He was always there with encouraging and uplifting words through some of my darkest hours. He was an exceptional friend and someone I could really talk to. He never judged, he just listened, and helped make light of tough situation's. I miss him dearly already. He was and is so loved. I certainly hope where ever his spirit has traveled, that he keeps that same spark, that same love. RIP Ron. You are heavily missed and heavily loved.

“ I've known Ron for a little over a decade now. He was an exceptional friend, an amazing mentor, and a one of a kind person. He always helped make light of bad situations, and was always there if I just needed someone to simply listen. Not judge, but listen. He was an amazing person that will forever hold a place in my heart. My hearts been weighing heavy since finding out the news of his passing. My son, who is severely autistic and non-verbal adored Ron. We both did. As my heart is heavy having lost a great friend, its even heavier knowing his family must feel that weight x10. You may not know me personally, but my heart truly is with you all. I truly believe though, that when we pass we do not travel far. So here to you Ron. May you carry all the love with you where ever you may have traveled. I hope you found your peace and can dance your nights away. Love you always and a day, Brittany King.

“ Before Ron's illness, he brought his son MAC to our family birthdays and holiday dinners. When Ron was working out-of-state, he would fly home each weekend he was scheduled to have Mac. Not many men would do that. Ron, you are in our prayers and we will miss you. God Bless you.

Our thoughts and prayers are with his family.

“ I was the new kid in town...Ron was willing to help me find my way. We became immediate friends. So many miles on our motorcycles together...some of them on both wheels. I cant think of high school without thinking "Ron." Loved you bro.
