“ Its been 7 months and i still cannot believe it, I miss you dearly. Waking up knowing you're not here kills me everyday. Words cannot express the hurt and pain i feel knowing you're no longer here. I know we weren't perfect but we've been together for 8 years, Your'e all i've ever know and we share 2 children together. We have gone thru alot these past 8 years I wasnt perfect and neither were you but yes we did love eachother. No matter what, whether I left kansas or you left Arizona we always ended up back together. We always knew we would always find our way back together. I sorry i did'nt do more to help you, yes the guilt kills me everyday. I will never accept the fact that you're not here, Its still unreal to me. I have my good days and I have my bad days.

This fathers day 2017 will be the first one where you're no longer here on earth.

Waking up to our Beautiful babies we created together it what keeps me going and motivated to not break down and give up. Ava looks just like you, and I know it hurts her little heart that you're not here to love her and call her your "Princess Keka" anymore.

Your son Anthony has your attitude and your mouth, I swear the things he does and says reminds me of your everyday. I always tell him you sound like daddy, and now he likes to be called "Ponchie". Im writing this on here because I feel this is the only was I can let my feelings out when I don't want to talk to anyone. I feel in my heart that you will receive this message. I love you Anthony ,Until we meet again -Mari

“ Ant talked of his children and the love he had of them. Being very close to him in the last two months one thing i distinctly remember him saying or doing is seeking words of truth ant when come to talk often just to hear what he suppose to hear not what he wanted. And he would protect me from the verbal abuse of my brother. He spent countless hours with my 6 year old autistic son. It was important to him to make a child smile. Favorite saying..... And thats what it is!

Love and miss you ant!!!!
