“ Austin Ruiz Another day has passed, and your still gone, my heart hurts so much. I listen to your voice mails to hear your voice, I look at our pictures and know there will be no more. Our memories and special moments will live on for ever. But I still want you here why did you have to go so soon you are my baby brother it should have never been you. I know that your in heaven and God welcomed you home with open arms. Now your with mom and I know you have found peace. Just know your are missed so much. Your love was genuine and wholeheartedly. You never pretended to like anyone you were always a straight shooter. I know God has great things planned for you just wish we had more time with you. I joked with you how old we were getting both of us sporting our grey and white hairs. I have learned so much from you and will treasure every moment we have ever had. I love you so much please come and visit from time to time. Mom comes and visits in the form of butterflies and let's me know she still sees me when the mysterious yellow flowers pop up out of nowhere in our yard. Christopher has asked for a sign that you visit in the form of a light blue flower. Listen to mom she will help guide you and help you be a guardian angel for those who need you most. I love you more than you'll ever know from this earth to heaven and beyond.
