“ We never met Clarence Reed, Sr., but after reading the posts here and watching the slide presentation, I feel as if we've known him for years. That is because many of the reasons Clarence was loved by his family and friends are the same reasons we love his son, Phil. Always good with children -- ours when they were younger, and now his own -- Phil has been known to pass up a gab session with adults to engage the kids in a game of Horse or Frisbee. Phil is always sharing something from his garden -- crazy hot peppers or beautiful tomatoes. In fact, he's always sharing everything. You can count on him to be there when you need something, often before you ask. Phil's wife and children always come first, and his friends a close second. It is obvious he had a great role model. I'm sure Clarence was very proud of his son.

“ Clarence Sr. and his son took care of my lawn for almost 20 years. They always did such a great job and were son pleasant to work with. Last time I saw Clarence Sr. he had a huge 'arrowhead' that he had found. He always had something interesting to share with you or some good advice. My condolences to the family.

“ Clarence Reed – Lawn Man Extraordinaire

We were fortunate to have Clarence and Junior take care of our lawn for over 15 years. How many of you can brag about your lawn man? We can! Clarence rang our doorbell; when we answered, he sometimes sang a favorite song, played his harmonica, or engaged in “show and tell”, oftentimes displaying a coin from his prized collection, “earthly” finds (arrowheads and cypress roots, among other “treasures”), or oftentimes wanting to share the fruits of his labor from his own garden (potatoes, tomatoes) or goodies from his kitchen (pickled okra, pear preserves).

Service with a smile and generous heart...That's how we'll remember Clarence Reed.

“ Uncle Clarence AKA Boss Hog when I was a little guy, was a good man and will surely be missed. I remember the stories he would tell about hunting and fishing during his life and he will be missed by everyone that knew him.

It was so good to hear from you this morning. Ha Ha ... I totally forgot about the Boss Hog. We all had such great times together and we miss you and Ashley so much. Dad loved you both dearly. Someone told me today that Dad's gone onto heaven and he's just checking things out so that everything will be ok when we all meet again.

Love to All, Liz, Clarence Jr and Phil

“ We lived across the street from the Reed's for 7 years. Mr. Reed was so kind, always bringing us vegetables, elephant ear plant starters and even brought our children Christmas stuffed animals that he and Clarence Jr. would win in the "claw" machine at Apple Market. I still have those stuffed animals and think of him when I set them out every Christmas. Prayers to your family.

Laurie Snapp and Family - February 29, 2012 at 06:54 AM

Thank you so much in sharing your memories of our dad. He loved children so much and he sure did win lot of stuffed animals. I don't know how many I have found but I knew he loved bringing them home to mom to make her smile.

Any who knew dad knows just how much he loved to garden and he's up there singing as he is sowing " Let there be PEAS in the valley (instead of Peace).

I remember you ran more behind that go-cart than in it. You pushed all of us kids up so many hills when the go-cart couldn't make it. What great memories and we had so much fun! Uncle Clarence sure knew how to make a bunch of kids happy:) I will never forget those times or you all.

“ To Jr., and the rest of the Reed family: Having just gone through this last week, in the passing of my wife's mother, I can certainly sympathize with you all. What has made it easier is just remembering the good and fun things shared while they were alive, and not dwelling on missing them. Life goes on for the living, and we need to make sure we are personally ready for this time, because we will not get a second chance to live like God wants us to live. Love and all the sympathy in the world, from us to you.
