Dear Dennis, I am hoping you can hear me still. I never knew you outside of our many years of interaction as cashier\customer at Hen House. You were the one I would look for as soon as I walked in....there you were; last register, checking out who was coming and going out the doors. I never heard an unpleasant word from you. You liked to act like a curmudgeon with that twinkly in your eye and that funny smile; quiet but mischievous. You were never showy -- just a dear and nice man. I miss you already and it will always be difficult for me to walk into Hen House and not see you there. Rest in heavenly peace Dennis - and happiness (I hope you lost your cigarettes by now though). My best to you always, and to your family. Patricia Maxwell
