“ Merry Christmas firstborn! As I prepared the holiday feast, I thought of you and your over-the-top garnishes and extra spices you would introduce and swear by. I would always marvel at your ability to host and prepare foods that were so beautiful and reflected your creative nature.

Nico and Gus continue to exhibit a lot of your skills, and both look just like you at different phases of your life. It can be breathtaking and surreal at times. You are so missed and loved, always on my mind and your name and memory mentioned daily. When I see you, son, after my lecture, I'll hold you tightly and aggravate you with song. Remember? I do. Until then.....sending my love from here to there.

“ Happy Father's Day, Jesse! I miss you so much. Scrolling through the pictures of Nico and Gus, I see you and your memory remains fresh on my mind. Their personalities reflect the kind, caring, free spirit that defined you. Whenever I do any "off the cuff" I think of your reaction. "What would Jesse say?" crosses my mind. You always shook your head and would ask "why?" but I could tell it humored you.

I'm sure you are with your brother now - and all the loved ones who passed before. I believe you can see us down here, as your spirit is strong, and it's you who keeps us going. I love you very much, my beautiful firstborn. May God watch over you until I see you again.
