Just finished a night of mushroom hunting. Period crossed the creek and found his bench with his name placard. Read his obituary, and it brought me to tears. Thank you for your service. Joshua and I will pray for your memory to always resonate with Jordin And Family. Much love

“ Josh, like Jared I will always remember my brother's comrade from Kansas City. We would always look forward to your summer time visits and all of the fun that we would have. Jared was so glad to have a couple weeks each summer that he got to have a "brother" and get away from all of his sisters. Jaci and I were always on our toes wondering what kind of trouble you two were going to get yourselves into next. I can still see the look on you faces when my dad would find the remnants of one of your schemes... you would give a little grin and say with your little drawl, "Awww, Uncle Jerry". I don't think he ever really got to mad at either of you two. Grandpa was another story though!! He would pull in the drive with a not so happy face... you and Jared in the back trying not to smile... He and grandma would set mandatory time apart for you boy's (and you would always find a way around it).

I also remember following you around Kansas City for baseball and AAU basketball games. I was always so proud of what a great little athlete you were becoming... sometimes you were more like a little brother to me too.

I am sure going to miss seeing you face and hearing your voice. As we have grown up our lives have put distance between us, but you were always the one I looked for to chat with when we had family stuff.

Steve, Gwen, & Jen... My heart is absolutely broken for you all. We will all continue to pray for you!!!

“ Josh, I couldn't have had a better friend growing up! I will never forget all the times that we had on the farm... maybe I should say all the trouble we got into on the farm. I'm not quite sure how many times Grandpa threatened us with switches. Just remember if you get in trouble with grandpa upstairs... run like hell, he will always cool down and forget about it! Steve, Gwyn, and Jen, I am so sorry I love all you guys! I will never ever forget my favorite cousin!

“ Steve, Gwyn, & Jennifer,
I have been praying for all of you during this difficult time. I can picture Josh playing baseball with a big grin on his face and remember all the fun outings the kids and I had during the summers I spent with your family.
