“ Mom... Help me... Help me close my mouth when it matters, so people will actually listen when it counts.. God took the wrong person Mom... I miss you so much, yet I am as distant as I am to you as my own sister, or in laws... Please Mom, hear me and help me.. I dreamt of you today, and Becky was there... Maybe that's your way of telling me whom to reach out to.. just know I miss you every second of every day, and love you now more than I thought possible....I need you Mom

I have so many questions for you.. I love hearing memories of you from the people who truly knew you, not just the last ten year's of your life.. we're so much more alike than you ever led on ;) I love you Mom. And a big Thank You to your Real friends,the good people who understand what its like to lose a Mother and are there for me and my family, just like YOU would be.. “ Sweetheart, Today it has been exactly 8 months since you went away. The 20th of every month seems to be significant now. The hurt and the pain are still here, but I think I am beginning to come to terms with the fact that you will NEVER, EVER be here again. There are still lots of times that I just can't make myself believe it, but they are less frequent. I realize that you are never coming home. I still listen to "Songbirds" nearly every night and I still have not managed to get to the end without crying, but I am getting closer. It says everything that I want to say to you. Please keep talking to me like you do and help me make difficult decisions. I just want to make you as happy as I can. I love you more than any words can ever say.

Today is Memorial Day and we should be out back playing with the flowers, opening the pool, cooking out with friends and family, and just enjoying the start of Summer, but it is just not the same without you. I love you and miss you so much. My hope is knowing that some day we will be together again. Please let Mom and Dad know that I love them and miss them too. I hope you are all together. We planted them nearly 3 years ago and never got a bloom. Out of 16 of them, 12 are blooming. I talked to them and asked them to please bloom for you, but I never expected this!! Your Iris's in the back started blooming today. I just keep thinking of you saying, "Look, Sweetheart, Look!!!!!!!!!!!!!!". You got SO EXCITED when one of our flowers would bloom. I will take care of them for you. I promise. I just keep wishing you could be here with me to enjoy them. I miss you SOOOOOOOOOOOOOO much!

“ Christmas is moms favorite holiday ever!! Since I was little she always was very excited for Christmas. I dont know what she loved more, putting so MANY lights on the tree it was ricdulous!! Or hanging the garland from the bannister every year with the red bows just perfect :) Or trying to make sure every body always got what they wanted. I feel so blessed and lucky to have spent so many years with my mom. She was a kind, generous person who would help anyone. A truly amazing women! Christmas will never be the same. At this time every year your calling me atleast once a day, if not more to ask if the boys would like this or that. My phone is silent, I just keep wishing it would ring with your cheerful voice on the other end. Christmas, along with every other holiday just feels empty now. “ One week ago today, I lost my best friend. I have written here lots of times in the past week, but never hit the send button as I wasn't sure it was right. But today I have a message for anyone who is reading this. If you are, it's because you loved Judy and are checking to see if anything new has been submitted. I get it. I check it 50 times a day. It's an open window at the bottom of my page that I just can't seem to delete. It has been a crazy week and I want to share with you a few things that Judy taught me. This week I have had too many times that I thought to myself, " Why?" I will never, ever understand why the good Lord works the way He does. Judy and I talked a bit last week ,after she was baptized, and I told her that God must really need a new angel. It's the only explanation that I can think of for taking such a wonderful, carrying person from all of our lives. Sorry, I am beginning to rant so back to what Judy taught me. Along with wondering why she left us so early in life, I have caught myself feeling sorry for myself and wondering , "why me ?" . I know that it is completely normal to feel this way, we are only human, but I stop and ask myself, "Is that would Judy would do?". In my short time of having the privilege of her in my life, I can honestly say that I never heard those words from her mouth. With all the pain and suffering she had to deal with for the past 2 years, she never once took time to feel sorry for herself. Instead, she chose to concentrate on what she could do to make someone Else's life better. Pretty amazing when you think about it. But , that was Judy. Another thing that Judy taught me was that life is not fair. She told me a long time ago that you don't get to choose what happens to you in life, you only get to choose how you react to it. Once again, pretty amazing words, but that was Judy. A truly, one of a kind, truly amazing person. I could go on but my purpose of writing this is to let everyone know that Judy would want us all to move on with our lives. I have a new saying, when I have to make a difficult decision. I stop and ask myself , "What would Judy do?" Corny, I know , but somehow, the right answer suddenly becomes very clear, and you are all welcome to use it if it helps you find comfort. It's what Judy would want. Move on , pick up the pieces, and get on with life. Lord knows , it ain't going to be easy, but I hope my message helps you find a comfort in a very difficult time. We all loved her and will never, ever forget her. I am beginning to rant again, but one last thing before I close. There is a link on this page called "grief and healing". I clicked on it and found it to be very helpful in understanding all of this. I hope you find it helpful too. See, Judy is already working through me to help you !! It's what she did while we had her in our lives and what she will continue to do until we can all see her again in heaven. Love, Joe

“ I asked the KC Presort Team to share some favorite Judy sayings:

"God luv 'em anyway"

"You gotta be kidding me"

"You're gonna believe me one day"

"He's so funny"

"Hey Missy"

"That fake grin - you know the one"

"At least you caught your mistake before it went out the door"

"Come on and go faster, faster!"

"If you don't have time to do it right --How do you have time to do it over??"

“ Judy was a wonderful person, very giving and kind. She would give anyone anything when she saw a need. Everyone loved her and cared about her. She was a dear friend when we worked together and even though we had not been in touch for a while, I still thought of her often. Her passing caught me by surprise and brings great sorrow. Your family is in my thoughts and prayers at this time.

“ Although we only knew each other for a short time, I came to intensely respect and admire Judy for her dedication to everything in her life. Those who did not have the chance to meet and know her missed a wonderful opportunity. Those who did are going to miss her wonderful friendship. With sadness, my sincere condolences to all.

“ The last time I saw Judy I was in Kansas City for my father's funeral last September. I stayed at Judy and my brother Joe's home the night before. The next morning while Joe was getting dressed she came to me and asked me to tie his tie for him. I knew she was not feeling well and suggested she might want to stay home.

She responded "absolutely not, I loved your father and I need to be there for Joe !"

It told me a lot about Judy. I will miss her too.

Judy was once of a kind and I'll never forget her. She had more strength than was imaginable. I'm sorry we hadn't seen each other for such a long time. I hope she has a large clothes closet up in heaven. My heartfelt condolences to her entire family
