“ I met Pam when I went to stay the night with the 'new' girl in my forth grade class. Andrea and I quickly became friends and remained close throughout our school years and beyond. Pam was always a 'no nonsense' tell it like it was woman but did it in the most down to earth, sprinkled with a little humor manner. She allowed me to confide in her and use her as a sounding board over the years, long after I lost my own mother. Andrea is always so quick to say " I know you talk to my mom on occasion, but don't tell her (insert something we were probably not supposed to be doing) . The last time I spoke with Pam was about a year ago when I was writing a paper for a class I was taking and I still remember her telling me how proud she was that I went back to school and that she always thought of me as 'one smart gal" - Loved her then, love her now, will love her always.
Journey well Pam, until we meet again!

“ Sis, we love you, we had many good times together and most important we were blessed to have your support and love through our fight and recovery. We miss you and will forever. May you rest now and be selfish just for once. With much love Don and Karen
