“ *Michelle, I am so sorry for your loss of your son. Saddens me to hear such news. You and I were in school together at this age and having such a great time. He will be missed by so many and is loved by so many, too. I will keep you and your family in my close thoughts and prayers. May you Rest In Peace, Ryder.

So sorry to only now acknowledge your kind words. I can just now entertain a somewhat healthy thought. The world moved when I gave birth to our precious son. Still, today, the world cries as it longs for thewonderous and amazing contributions Ryder offered from the kindness and generous caring that were characteristics of his beautiful nature as well his love and laughter, and eyes that illuminated that same love, and compassion, making a reality of his need to share all of himself he could share which was all that one of his family members and/or friends needed to help them get through, rise above, or cause any fear, or problem to disappear and a smile to lead their hearts to happiness. As if all of the aforementioned good was not yet Ryder's all to give his family, friends, and this universe, Ryder's spirit, his strongest characteristic yet. He would share his soul and all that it held, his strong faith and belief in God with a message that we could live this life on earth, but with Christ in our hearts, we could live a life of eternity and join him there. I could not survive another second without the knowledge that I were going to live a life eternal with Ryder in it...not another tear nor fear that I may have to suffer this hell again and live life without Ryder in it. I love you to infinity and beyond Ryder. Watch for my arrival as I have a promise from God that I will be loving you forever.

“ Ryder was a sweet, fun-loving student in my 5th grade classroom. He always put a smile on his peers faces while making the entire class laugh with his daily jokes. He will be missed dearly. He has left a positive impression on so many peoples lives. My thoughts and prayers are with your family and friends.

“ Ryder,

You are a special young man. Our son Matthew is proud to have known you, he said you taught him to do a 180! You will be missed, and you will NOT be forgotten. Our prayers go out to your family and your friends. May God comfort them, and may your spirit be a light to shine in our hearts forever. Rest in peace.
